A VIGOROUS PROTEST.

Action of a Meeting of Mining Men Held in Denver.

Protest Against Free Importation of Lead Ores.

Addresses by Symes, Belford, Tabor and Others.

Senator Sherman Receives a Very Severe Scoring.

Protest Against a Tariff Ruling.

DENVER August 6.—A large and enthusiastic meeting of citizens and leading mining men of the state was held in the Chamber of Commerce to night to protest against and take some action against the free importation of lead ores from Mexico and other countries. The meeting was called to order by Secretary Reynolds of the Chamber of Commerce and Geo. F. Batchelder was chosen chairman.

Ex-Congressman Symes was the first gentleman introduced. He made an able argument against admitting into this country free of duty lead ores simply because they contained a little silver. He thought that if this subject had been properly presented to the treasury department in the first place the outrageous ruling which now governs these importations would never have been made. He thought that there was some excuse for the past administration adhering to this law because they were appealed to all forms of protection, but for the present administration one of whose principles is protection, there can be no excuse for not forcing the payment of 1½ cents per pound duty on all lead ore brought into the United States. He trusted that the citizens of Colorado would continue to hold meetings for the purpose of discussing this great question for they will do untold good. Congress is never so certain in taking action as when its members are backed up by the righteous demands of their constituencies. He concluded by saying that this was not a question of democracy or republicanism, but a question as to whether the great industry of Colorado should go up or go down, and it was the duty of every citizen to do all in his power in the interest of his state.

Mr. Symes was followed by Judge Belford, who made a ringing speech, in which he termed the tariff a "bundle of mutuality," and to be only right when it was for the benefit of some eastern section like pig iron in Pennsylvania, wool in Ohio and matches in Michigan, and the gold dollar in the Wall street banks but never yet had it been used for the protection of silver and lead in Colorado. He also said it was not a question of politics. "Both parties are to blame, for when they go into the steal they go into it like the birds went into Noah's ark, two of every one and one republican."

In speaking of the crisis of the existing state of affairs Belford said: "John Sherman cold as the icicle on Diana's brow, is the gentleman who adopted this rule. He was secretary of the treasury at the time. I denounced him then, I denounce him now. He was and always has been the enemy of silver. He used his office to establish a national bank in New York and has never made an attempt to deny it. I hate him because he is the enemy of my state and because he has been the consistent and persistent enemy of the silver interest."

Ex-Senator Tabor made a few pointed remarks stating that if Colorado could not have her share of the protection she had better go for free trade for everything. J. G. Cornforth and Major Wynkoop and several others also addressed the meeting. The following was unanimously adopted and the meeting adjourned.

Whereas, The health, development and prosperity of Colorado is dependent on her mineral resources and,

Whereas, The mineral product of the state already amounts to over $283,000,000 with a steady yearly increase and

Whereas, A large proportion of this yearly product represents labor at the highest price prevailing in any state of the union and,

Whereas, This great industry is threatened with destruction by the competition of the cheap labor of Mexico and,

Whereas, The beneficent laws of our country are intended to protect us and if rightly construed are ample for our purpose; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, First—That the citizens of Colorado should organize in every city, town and camp for the mutual protection of our leading industry.

Second—That it is due to us from the legislative and officers of the government that measures be immediately taken to insure such protection.

Resolved, That silver ore being admitted duty free and lead ore bearing a duty of 1½ cents per pound that it is unfair and unwise to permit a pound and a half of silver to bring in free of duty 1000 pounds of lead which should pay a duty of $30 per ton.

Resolved, That it is common sense that ore carrying 1½ pounds of silver per ton and 1000 pounds of lead is not silver ore but lead ore and should be so classified.

Resolved, That the commerce of the state amounting to 200,000 carloads of mineral, merchandise and machinery during 1888 is mainly due to the mining industry and that other states supplying their proportions of this immense business should aid us in securing the protection needed to prevent the destruction of this great source of wealth to the nation.

Resolved, That we believe in the power and desire of Hon. Wm. Windom secretary of the treasury, to remove the trouble indicated, and we confidently look to him for the desired relief and protection.

Other Meetings.

ST. LOUIS, August 6.—The proposed convention of representatives of the silver mining and general mining industries of the United States and of kindred industries, may now be considered an assured fact. At the meeting of the mining exchange, presided over by President Joe J. Mullaly addresses were made by J. M. S. Eagan, of Georgetown, Col., Frank Gaynor of St. Louis and others. A resolution was adopted appointing a committee of fifteen to invite delegates to attend the convention, which will be held in St. Louis early in October. Substantial encouragement is vouchsafed by the merchants, cotton, real estate and mechanics' exchanges and the national convention of silver men will, no doubt, be a big one.

The French Council.

PARIS, August 6.—The official returns of the election for members of the council general show 977 republicans and 489 conservatives elected.

TOPEKA, Kas., August 6.—The sorghum works were burned this morning. The loss is seventy thousand dollars. Hundreds of acres of sorghum in the vicinity are nearly ready for grinding.

A Daring Leap.

NEW YORK, August 6.—At Rockaway last evening Professor Hastings Payne jumped from a tower one hundred and fifty feet high into a net stretched a few feet above the water. The leap was successfully performed.

Maud S. to go into Training.

NEW YORK, August 6.—Robert Bonner says that Maud S. will be put in training at once. The only question for not doing so before was John Murphy's illness. Now that Murphy is dead it has not been decided in whose hands she will be put.

Kentucky Goes D.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., August 6.—Specials received here indicate that Stephen G. Sharp, the democratic candidate for treasurer, has been elected by between 30,000 and 40,000 majority. The democrats gain eight and probably more seats in the legislature.

The Land Office Over.

CAIRO, August 6.—General Grenfelt is returning to Cairo as the campaign is over. A body of Egyptians was left at Suakim. The cavalry are in pursuit of the one remnant who survived the battle of Saturday. He is hiding in the hills above Bellana with 200 men.

Pacific Postal.

NEW YORK, August 6.—The following directors of the Pacific Postal Telegraph and Cable company were elected to-day: John W. Mackey, W. C. Van Horne, George Stephens, Charles R. Hosmer, Richard V. Dey, Albert R. Chandler, Hector Decastro, Edward C. Platt and George Evard.

A Gentile Victory.

SALT LAKE, U. T., August 6.—The Gentile population is greatly excited over the result of the elections. The vote gave them a majority of 41 in the city and insures a Gentile city government next February. Six Gentiles were elected to the house as republicans and two to the council giving them eight out of thirty-six.

Idaho's Constitution.

BOISE CITY, Idaho, August 6.—The convention closed to day. The constitution is properly signed and ready for presentation to congress after its ratification at the election on November 5th. The members go home pledged to support it. One member named Pefley refused to sign because the document recognized the Almighty God. He also refused to pay for his labor in framing the constitution.

A Murderous Fight.

MADISON, Ind., August 6.—Last night young George Schlick shot Robert Sisco, killing him instantly. Schlick had quarrelled with Sisco's brother and afterwards found Dick Sisco in a saloon and shot him dead, at the same time slightly wounding a man named Reeder and a man named Close, who attempted to stop him. Schlick got away but was discovered this morning by Walter Sisco, the dead men's brother, who tried to stop him, when Schlick cut Sisco dangerously across the throat and made good his escape.

Stone's Report.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—The forthcoming annual report of Acting Commissioner Stone of the general land office will show that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1889 there were certified to railroad companies under various grants a total of 423,046 acres of land, or 404,116 less than the total certifications of the previous year. There were pending in the general land office on June 30, 1889, railroad selections under former grants amounting to 29,444,251 acres, which is an increase for the year of 4,014,383 acres.

The New Mexico Election.

SANTA FE, N. M., August 6.—There are candidates for delegate to the constitutional convention in all the counties of New Mexico, but there is no straight democratic ticket in any of them, this course having been advised by the democratic managers on the plea of unfair apportionment. In some counties there is a mixed ticket called a people's ticket. The vote to day throughout the territory is light. The convention meets September 3d at Santa Fe and will be almost solidly republican. The election of to day is the first under the new modified Australian election law passed by the last legislature.

Mills Closed.

OSWEGO, N. Y., August 6.—The property of the Riverside and Oswego Mills company owning extensive worsted mills at Oswego Falls was to day attached by the sheriff for $412,000 in an action brought by Juliard, McKenzie & Quinby, dry goods merchants of New York city. The defendant is a foreign corporation with headquarters at Providence, R. I. The corporation has a capital stock of one million dollars. The action was commenced to secure the payment of money loaned the defendant. The defendant also owns extensive property at Providence. The action will probably cause temporary suspension but an easy adjustment of the trouble is looked for. The mills employ 1000 hands.

SUCCESS AT LAST.

The Sioux Indian Commission's Labors Finished.

The Requisite Number of Signatures Obtained.

Big Reservation to be Thrown Open to the Public.

Joy of the People at the Success of Commission.

Joy at Chamberlain.

CHAMBERLAIN, Dak., August 6.—Excitement is intense in this section to day on account of the success of the Sioux commission. The feelings of the people may be imagined when it is known that for fully eight years they have labored unceasingly to accomplish this end. Buildings are covered with flags and the sound of cannons, music, fireworks and bells fill the air. This is a great day in the history of the development of the northwest.

The Final Council.

STANDING ROCK, Dak., August 6.—The final council was held this afternoon at which the commissioners said good bye to the Indians. They will leave this place for Bismarck to morrow having been successful in their efforts and objects. A treaty for the opening of the big Sioux reservation. There are now on the rolls at this place 685 names, Sitting Bull being still out.

Sitting Bull to be Ch[illegible].

STANDING ROCK, Dak., August 6.—The requisite number of signatures for opening the great Sioux reservation were secured last evening. The occasion of the day was the signing by Chief Gall and the Upper and Lower Yanktonians followed Gall. One million acres, which the whites have been looking longingly at for so many years, will now be opened.

The Spokane Fire.

SPOKANE FALLS, August 6.—The loss by Sunday night's fire will not fall short of ten million dollars, with insurance for about one-fourth of that amount. The banks have obtained temporary quarters and several have already opened for business. The work of clearing away the debris has already commenced. The work of rebuilding will be commenced at once.

The flames are engaged in blowing down dangerous walls and militia companies are guarding the burnt district, while mounted police patrol the entire city. The militia will be reinforced by a company from Walla Walla to day. The city council to-day held a meeting and passed a resolution prohibiting the erection of wooden buildings in the burned district and a committee of citizens consisting of one hundred strong. It will be at the regular meeting on Wednesday morning. The council passed resolutions revoking the licenses of all hotels and restaurants and dealers in provisions who advance prices. Only two shops remain and they have been closed by order of the mayor. The council has ordered the committee on fire, water and sewers to investigate the cause of the absence of the superintendent of water works, as the men left in charge were incompetent.

A hopeful feeling prevails and although the destruction will retard the progress of the city for years the enterprise and stability are so well established that the city can not be blotted out and will rise again grander and better than before, and will still claim its position as the commercial center and railway center of eastern Washington.

Decision Reversed.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—United States Attorney Lyons, of the Pittsburg district, has made a report to the secretary of the treasury in regard to the case of 25 English glass blowers employed at Jeanette, Pa. These men came to this country on the representation made to their assembly at Sunderland, England by the local assembly No 300, K. of L., that they would easily find employment. They arrived at Boston and all were allowed to land on giving satisfactory evidence to the collector that they had not come under contract. They then proceeded to Jeanette and were at once put to work. Homer L. McGraw complained that the landing of these men was in violence of the contract labor law and asked that they be compelled to leave the country. The matter was referred to District Attorney Lyons and he now reports to the department that in his opinion the men came under contract and in violation of the law.

Indian Situation.

CINCINNATI, August 6.—What has been termed the "Coonian's rebellion" was formally ended in the police court this morning by the granting of amnesty to the offenders on the application of their attorney. The latter stated that the defendants were men who had money invested and thought they were justified in trying to make money, and they were in some measure excusable. Before a week had passed they knew they were wrong. These men in the presence of their comrades by a unanimous rising vote, had agreed to obey the law hereafter. "Now your honor having seen the error of their way, they ask forgiveness, and as their representative I ask the court to meet them half way by postponing the cases now pending against them, so long as they obey the law." "I adopt the suggestion," said the court, "and add that if there is no further violation there will be no further prosecution."

The Canucks Want Wheat.

TORONTO, August 6.—A special from Ottawa says: There was considerable chuckling here at the news from Victoria of the safe arrival there of the ship Black Diamond, although there is naturally much excitement still existant at the outrageous conduct of Captain Shepard in forcibly boarding the vessel and breaking the ship's lockers. Shepard's action and that of his government affords a very remarkable contrast to the treatment extended to United States fishing vessels that have been seized or detained for transgressions of the Canadian fishery laws of the Atlantic. Apart altogether from the recent seizure the conduct of Captain Shepard must of necessity engage the more serious attention of the home government. In this case a vessel having a British register and flying a British flag, is boarded on the high seas and forcibly stolen. Under these circumstances an American citizen is surely due to the British consular officer, pursuing a legitimate calling. The imperial government should without further procrastination take prompt and decisive measures to protect British commerce beyond the territorial waters of the United States or any other territory.

Collector Hartley has telegraphed the minister of customs that the Black Diamond's clearance papers, consisting of seal and certificate of registry as well as the sealed skins had been taken from her.

Strong Hands.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., August 6.—This afternoon a mob composed chiefly of Hungarians went to the Paull works on the west side of the river and drove the men from the works and also drove the laborers out who were at work on the new ovens there. The general superintendent was in the engine house at the time and kept the mob at bay with a revolver. No one was hurt and no damage was done to the works. The crowd then proceeded to the Carnegie works and on the way drove the men from the Nellie works, where the men took to their heels. At Camp the men were frisked out as well as the laborers at work on the ovens. The Hungarians who led the mob were drunk and wild with excitement and workmen only escaped injury by running away.

Shot at Johnstown.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., August 6.—Harry Moyer of Superintendent Hughes' carpenter force last night shot and instantly killed John McCormick. There had been a row between these men last Sunday and McCormick came into Moyer's tent about 9 o'clock, began to abuse him and drew a revolver. Moyer drew a pistol and shot McCormick through the heart. He was arrested and locked up. He claims that the shooting was done in self-defense. McCormick's body was taken to the morgue. Moyer is from Norristown and McCormick who was a tramp was from Philadelphia.

Counterfeit Coin.

WYOMING CITY, August 6.—A large number of counterfeit silver dollars have recently made their appearance in this city. Deputy United States Marshals Marks, Beary and Hall to day arrested Abraham Bolles, one of the counterfeiters. A coin was found on his person and a number of pieces between the mattresses of his bed. Molds for the manufacture of coin were found. Dispatches from Shelbina state that Isaac Boles, Abraham's brother, has been arrested there on the same charge. It is supposed they are merely the tools of the manufacturers of the coin.

Editorial Association.

NEW YORK, August 6.—The National Editorial association will meet at Detroit, Mich., on Tuesday, August 27, and continue in session four days. An address on "Editorial Philosophy" will be delivered by Col. Elliott F. Shepard, of the New York Mail and Express. Major Richards, of the Indianapolis News, will make an address from the publisher's standpoint. Topics for discussion and papers have been assigned to representatives from the various states.

Mays Will Return.

TAHLEQUAH, I. T., August 6.—Now that Mays' party has been overwhelmingly defeated public attention reverts to the Cherokee question. Chief Mays will return Thursday and it is expected he will at once answer the proposition made by the commission. It is thought that the Cherokees will ask for time to post themselves on the question and that the commission will be asked to return in October. During the interval the commission will visit the Cheyennes and Arapahoes.

Disaster Through a Defective Culvert.

OMAHA, Aug. 6.—A defective culvert at Weston, Nev., on the Union Pacific at 2 o'clock this morning caused the death of Engineer Mitchell. Switchman Conklin was fatally injured and Engineer Morgan crippled for life. The train was a freight drawn by two locomotives. Five men were caught in the debris when the bridge went down, but the other two were taken out unhurt. A heavy rain last night had washed out the supports of the culvert.

Examining the Pacific Statements.

WASHINGTON, August 6.—Wm. Thompson, chief clerk of the office of commissioner of railroads, left Washington to-night for Boston to make the usual annual examination of the books of the Union Pacific railway. Then he will proceed to San Francisco to make a similar examination of the books of the Central Pacific.

An Old Feud Revived.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., August 6.—At Harlan Court House yesterday the old feud between the Turners and Holden Howard factions was renewed by several of the Howards demanding of young Jim Turner that he leave the state. Turner refused, and one of the Howards shot him, killing him instantly.

Greek Note to Greece.

ATHENS, Greece, August 6.—The Greek government has sent to the powers a circular note demanding that they intervene to restore order in Crete, otherwise Greece will take action to protect her subjects on the island against the Turks.

In the Alley Behind Every Lot in Parrish's Addition

There is a 8-inch Water Pipe, connected at Chestnut street with a 16-inch main; the Largest in the City's System. THE MAIN CITY DITCH, taking pure, clear water from the Fountain, runs just back of PARRISH'S ADDITION, and within a stone's throw of it.

On Monday Sharp Smith was bound over in the justice court in the sum of one thousand dollars. This was a slight amount considering the nature of the offense. He has been getting his living for years by cheating other people and should have long ago been hustled out of town. His last offense was the worst of all, when he cowardly stepped up behind John Arkins and knocked him down. Such men should not be in the state not of jail.

Judge Stuart has, as will be seen by our dispatches of yesterday, ended the contempt proceedings by discharging ex Senator N P Hill and fining William Stapleton and K G Cooper. He could not have made a greater mistake than he has. We have always believed in making newspapers responsible for their utterance. But it is not very wise for a judge to be so sensitive about his official conduct as to call a newspaper editor into court and fine him for what he says regarding the court. It looks like too great anxiety about public opinion. A judge ought not to be thinking about what the newspapers say or what people are thinking of his course. He ought to do what is right and feel enough confidence in the righteousness of his course to let his record speak for itself. No contempt case will increase the respect for Judge Stuart's orders or his decision.

We continue to publish letters on the water question as long as good is likely to come out of it. But it is just as well to talk as sensibly about the things. Undoubtedly the council did make a mistake in giving the water to the different additions to the town, but the people who now object to it did not object to it at the time, and it probably improved the [illegible] in about the [illegible] way. The scheme which the present council is endeavoring to carry out was suggested to it by our city engineer, Mr. Reid, who developed the plan after much consideration. He undoubtedly devised the best one that could have been devised and we should have all been satisfied with it, if it had not been for two things which we did not anticipate, the first being the [illegible] of Manitou, and the second the delay in getting the title to Lake Moraine. If we were to criticize the present council at all, it would be for abandoning our rights in North Cheyenne rather than for its failure to carry out the plan which it attempted when it started to lay this sixteen-inch main. We are glad to publish the letters in order that people should be stirred up against this matter. We now make plans for a larger amount of water than we at first intended, and all the water about here that can be secured should be. If this is done promptly, we may avoid a good deal of future litigation. Meanwhile if there is any immediate danger, the council can do as it did in the spring of 1880, when the pipe to Manitou was frozen. A dumping cart was put in the Monument bottom and sufficient water was pumped from a well there to supply the city. This can be done again and at twenty four hours notice if necessary.

The Water Question

COLORADO SPRINGS, August 6, 1889.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

DEAR SIR: If you will kindly grant me the use of your paper again I will promise to give utterance at this time to all I want to say on the above subject.

In the first place I wish to take exception to the too great freedom with which [illegible] are disposed to bestow uncomely epithets upon very worthy citizens. Probably no one would be willing to say to a member of the council, "Sir, I consider that you act like an idiot," and yet such terms as "imbecile" and "incompetent" are used freely in published articles. To say the least, such language seems to me neither dignified nor courteous, and it is also uncalled for. Very likely no one will now be found to deny that mistakes have been made. With ordinary mortals, afterslight is invariably more reliable than foresight, and for this reason it is easy in criticizing to be wholly unjust. It is unfortunate indeed that the people who are so ready to tell what they would have done had they been there, somehow always fail to be there. The rapid growth of the city itself during the past two years is sufficient to account for the unlooked for scarcity of hydrant water. Very few of us have realized the true situation until recently, and I venture the assertion that had any plan been proposed, in the council or out of it, even so recently as two years ago, looking to the increase of our water supply, at any considerable cost, three fourths of the taxpayers would have been in arms against it at once. I do not say the wisest policy was not pursued, but I do say that few of us would have done better.

The present council is making real efforts to solve the problem now before us, as did also its predecessor and to build a new reservoir and lay a new main, was decided to be the best course. Some are disposed to speak of the method chosen with much contempt, but that does not necessarily prove it to be the one that could have been adopted and had it been completely [illegible] so great difficulty would have arisen. But no one expected the people of Manitou to take the unneighborly attitude they have assumed, and hence the application for delay. Ruxton Creek will probably furnish water enough to fill all the mains and so far as the courts have ruled, we are legally entitled to it. We have [illegible]

Entirely aside from the Platte, [illegible] large drainage area which [illegible] contributes to the Fountain [illegible] in the mountains north of [illegible] irrigation. We should [illegible] in for domestic use [illegible] we will answer for all [illegible] in the end would prove cheaper than continued water rents and expensive litigation with the heavy damages we should [illegible] from time to time [illegible] If we are able to infer [illegible] right is in the Platte [illegible] according to the [illegible] would seem to be the only method of really increasing the water supply in the Fountain valley.

To the alternative of constructing reservoirs there are also serious objections. To begin with the waste from seepage and evaporation, in our warm and dry air, is very great. Then if they are to be of material assistance they must be of large capacity as well as numerous. The perils incident to the existence of artificial dams have been forcibly illustrated the present summer and it is safe to say none of us would want to live in the path of such possible destruction. The dangers from such a source are further magnified in a region where the sudden and violent downfall of rain, popularly known as a "cloud burst," is of so frequent occurrence as in Colorado. Floods thus caused are sufficiently disastrous as it is and we must guard against any artificial increase in their volume. These considerations will combine to construct reservoir dams of such solidity as to make this undertaking also very expensive.

It occurs to me, however, that much might be done in the direction of greater economy in the use of water. I have often seen persons whose lawns had been flooded from the ditch, keep a sprinkler running the same day the full time allowed. Such waste would be foolish under any circumstances and is almost criminal in our present condition. I do not see any good reason why meters could not be put in and water rates be fixed according to the quantity used.

The flat system certainly promotes waste and extravagance besides working real hardship in many cases. I have known of a poor laundress whose water rental was nearly as large as that of her wealthy neighbor who kept horses and carriages, had extensive gardens and lawns and used water freely all over his premises, and the former had only her small cottage. While it is true that the beauty of any private property is so much added to the attractiveness of the city, men who have such comforts as above mentioned are, as a rule, both able and willing to pay reasonably for them. Here is an abuse that ought to be remedied, and the adoption of meters would put a stop to all waste and induce every use of water, and one man would no longer use a hundred times as much as his neighbor while paying the same rental.

E F WHITE.

COLORADO SPRINGS, August 6, 1889.

To the Editor of the Gazette:

DEAR SIR—A great deal has been written upon the water question, but it seems to me we get no intelligent light upon the subject, but a great deal of intelligence (of language) is wasted to condemn this and all previous city councils. I fail to see how any good can come out of that way of talking on the subject. I believe the council is honest and are a hard working intelligent set of men. They put in more hard work and time than they are generally given credit for. They council with the wisest and most interested citizens of the city and keep their counsel to themselves to a great extent just as any good business man does to his affairs of life. This is the way all business men and firms do in order to accomplish desired ends. We as individuals and citizens are making mistakes in our affairs and do not see them until we have lived on a little while. The more prosperous we become the more mistakes we see behind us—we all serve a fine building built and all say "that is a fine building, the best in town, really better than the place requires" &c &c. In a year or two we observe that some building is being torn down. It was a bad mistake to put up that "thing" now we require one more modern, ground is so valuable now we must have a basement and a lot some more stories above.

That man was no "imbecile" nor is he now he is and was "smart" all the time, and more than that he is progressive, prosperous and public spirited. It is [illegible] evidence in the world of prosperity when we can look back and see mistakes in the way of public and private building. I for one enjoy the sight of our bridges, buildings and every improvement fast becoming too small and out of date. I feel confident that a people and city that is so prosperous that these things can be pushed out of date so soon will have ways and means at hand to take care of anything. I have the fullest confidence that our city council will find and have in use all the water [illegible] when we become a population [illegible] sand and [illegible] of their rights outside of [illegible] Moraine and the water [illegible] county will do it, when it [illegible] which it surely will [illegible] the least. [illegible] one sure way [illegible] Ruxton Creek will be the [illegible] under the control of the city [illegible] water stream at all times of the year. Then build up the reservoir on east side of the city [illegible] hundred [illegible] keep it full all the time. Have a pipe arranged with valves so at in case of great fire it can be turned back through [illegible] and give us an unquestionable service and supply at such a time. But for any other time lay a cheap pipe line back into the city as far north as the college and have valves at all ditches crossed by it so it can be used for irrigation, then we will begin to practice economy in irrigation, the lawn hands will always have the water just where they want it at exactly 7 a. m. and none wasted down Shook's Run over night and Sundays but saved till used.

Some say "How about getting through Manitou?" I will say, without comment, "we will get there." I hope to see more said and written on how to solve the question of "more water" best and cheapest, but with implicit confidence that this city will always have plenty of water and double its population within five years I will go on and risk my fortune in property and pay my taxes without a kick.

TAKING OF THE BASTILE.

Results of the Capture of This Famous Old Prison.

THE MOMENTOUS WORK OF 1789

History of the Bastile Retold. Noted Men Confined Within Its Walls. Its Final Demolition by the Revolutionists.

By JUNIUS HENRI BROWNE

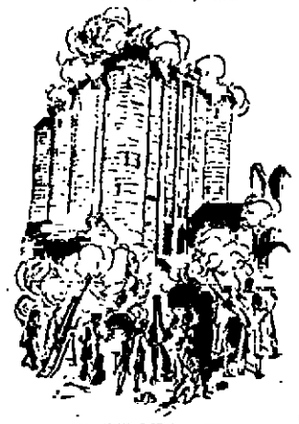
(Copyrighted, 1889, by Associated Press Association.)

III

[illegible] of the first French Revolution is generally supposed to be the taking of the Bastile [illegible] 1789. Certainly the capture of the [illegible] most memorable events of [illegible] century. It has been universally selected by our historians as the most salient [illegible] of those years of [illegible] struggle of the [illegible] people for what they considered to be their rights. In their frantic efforts to gain what [illegible] had never enjoyed, and could not appreciate [illegible] destroyed law and order, liberty [illegible] established in the land the [illegible] has never known.

HISTORY OF THE BASTILE.

The historic [illegible] of the Bastile was far from heroic but it was equally historic. It will always be remembered as one of the most striking and furious uprisings of the people against their oppressors, though most of those had [illegible] away, leaving others behind to make [illegible]



[illegible] THE BASTILE.

That grim fortress had for ages been filled with despairing [illegible] and had given [illegible] to every soul with the light of freedom. Originally the [illegible] of Paris, it was built during the [illegible] century, by order of Charles V, surnamed the Wise, by Hugo Aubriot, provost of that capital. At the gate St. A[illegible] as a defense [illegible] the English, who occupied long after [illegible] as a state prison, it was provided with great bulwarks and ditches. On each of its towers [illegible] high, above which ran a [illegible] with battlements [illegible] the level of the [illegible]. Their inmates were [illegible] from the world and [illegible] to be wholly forgotten, and, in [illegible] of all in—of the most as well as the [illegible] of [illegible]. The Bastile [illegible] hold [illegible] of eighty prisoners, who were generally [illegible] of distinction. [illegible] They had [illegible] any crime, they were [illegible] shut up for political [illegible] from the caprice of tyrants or the [illegible] of private foes.

During the last century the prison had a governor, a royal [illegible], a major's aide and a [illegible], with a garrison of a hundred men. The walls were thirty to forty feet at the base, and twelve feet above. Each cell had a narrow aperture in the wall, protected by [illegible] from [illegible]. The [illegible] dungeons were five feet below the level of the ditch, which was [illegible] five feet deep, and [illegible] by a [illegible] loophole [illegible]. The unhappy [illegible] confined there had little food, and that [illegible] of the [illegible] of the governor, who was [illegible] paid by the states for their [illegible]. They [illegible] for [illegible], they were locked up without accusation or trial, they were allowed no communion with their fellows, a mere [illegible] denied even the privilege of hearing for their arrest and [illegible] any length of time. They were, in a word, buried alive. Early in the Fifteenth century the populace, who had [illegible] by the princes of Armagnac, broke into the place, where they had [illegible] and put them to death.

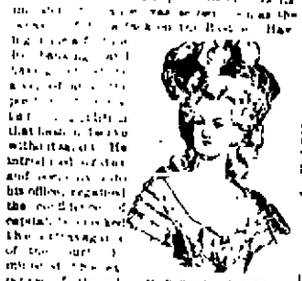
There died Charles de G[illegible], marshal of France, who had been guilty of [illegible] against Henry IV [illegible] the courtier and soldier was shut up there years, however, for a time, was Marshal Richelieu, the most licentious and worldly nobleman of his [illegible]. Voltaire, also, and M[illegible] de Latude spent thirty years [illegible] for having [illegible] Mme de Pompadour, the [illegible] of Louis XV. There, too, the Man in the Iron Mask was [illegible] for five years, an object of Louis XIV's [illegible], dying at last in his eighty [illegible] cell. To this day his [illegible] has been discovered. The [illegible] of such a person has [illegible] but [illegible] have left no doubt of it.

THE [illegible] OF STATE.

He was a prisoner of state; the [illegible] of the [illegible] Sept. 14, 1698, having been [illegible] from the Island of Ste. Marguerite by St. Mars, who was that year appointed governor of the Bastile. He was [illegible] in a closed litter, accompanied by a [illegible] guard, his face concealed with a black velvet mask [illegible] with steel springs, any attempt to [illegible] which would [illegible] in his immediate [illegible]. He was allowed to speak to no one but his [illegible], who [illegible] to kill him if he should open his lips to any [illegible]. When in the Bastile, he was [illegible] at his [illegible] and while changing his clothes, by St. Mars, who scrutinized [illegible] to see that he left no mark on it which [illegible] by the [illegible] of the governor [illegible] to shoot him if at any time he tried to [illegible]. He was [illegible] he had worn or [illegible] he was almost as much alive as he had [illegible] for years before. Voltaire was the first to furnish any [illegible] or plausible [illegible] of him, and [illegible] that author's day and [illegible] have vainly sought to solve the profound mystery. It has been [illegible] that the Iron Mask was the illegitimate son of the Duke of Buckingham and Anne of Austria, of Louis XIII and [illegible] of Louis XIV; also a twin brother of the latter king and thus [illegible] to prevent a disputed [illegible]. There have [illegible] which bring more [illegible] the Duke of [illegible], the Count of Vermandois, the Duke of P[illegible] and [illegible], but [illegible] are wholly [illegible].

THE OCCASION OF THE RISING.

[illegible] the death of Louis XIV the [illegible] had lost its mystery and history [illegible] be [illegible] ordinary prisoners [illegible] ments thereof. Louis XVI's librarian, disclosed its infamies and influenced the populace [illegible]



MADE AND SUPPED.

[illegible] Royal [illegible] the state [illegible] the governor [illegible] and [illegible] the prime minister Maurepas.

[illegible] the king [illegible] and [illegible] had been [illegible] Pre[illegible] Hi[illegible] and he resigned. His successors were [illegible] failures [illegible] years later, [illegible] the effect upon [illegible] that [illegible] per cent [illegible] a single day. But a striking more than social reform was required, and he was [illegible] to the great political agency. But as he was looked upon by the people as their advocate and friend, as the savior of France, [illegible] aroused their anger to the utmost and produced a [illegible]. The [illegible] blew into the wind, the [illegible] were [illegible] and rose in immense [illegible].

Camille Desmoulins, a young [illegible] who had [illegible] two republican pamphlets, and was in the habit of haranguing the people, mounted a table in the Palais Royal the day after Necker's dismissal and a [illegible] then to defy other [illegible]. He defied the police with a pistol in each hand, swearing he would not be taken alive. He advised them to adopt a cockade, a [illegible] ribbon and a [illegible] it was lacking, to take [illegible] from the trees in the garden. "To arms! to arms!" he called with flashing eyes and streaming hair.

MOB SCENE IN PARIS.

They rifle the gun [illegible] and the Hôtel des Invalides; they parade the [illegible] in the city; they fill the air with [illegible] and [illegible]; they [illegible] the mob is in full force and rage; the [illegible] of the band [illegible].

CAPTURE OF THE ODIOUS FORTRESS.

On the [illegible] July 14, all Paris is in [illegible]. We are awaking [illegible] but blue and red, and the [illegible] brandish clubs, [illegible] pikes, swords, [illegible] pots—whatever they can lay hold of. The streets and squares are obstructed with cannons, carts, carriages that have been [illegible] in the [illegible] and broken. The [illegible] is for sale, arms, arms, arms! and hunted for on every side. [illegible] and rubbish of every sorts are in the [illegible] de Grève. The regular [illegible] are [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] the bells are [illegible] from every spire, and [illegible] through all the [illegible].

The crowds surge to and the Bastile, [illegible] around that gray, grisly fortress, burning to level it to the ground. [illegible] under the command of [illegible], the [illegible] governor, let the ship sail in being against it, he will not. He has but eighty-two invalids and twenty-two Swiss against tens of thousands of frantic Parisians armed with the [illegible] of [illegible] of wrong. How unequal the contest, though the small garrison is within stone walls! Far more than walls are for the [illegible] of a [illegible] is the [illegible] of the [illegible], the force of public opinion. The besiegers again demand surrender, again it is [illegible]. The cannons pointed on the Faubourg St. Antoine, which is steadily pouring forth its black crowd, ferocious working men, are drawn back from the embrasures as a [illegible] to the howling host but it does not mollify them. They howl more madly, more [illegible] than ever. The [illegible] of the first drawbridge are cut, it falls clanking down, and [illegible] with the best [illegible]. Fire [illegible] fire. One of the garrison is slain while a [illegible] and fifty of the populace fall. This makes them [illegible].

A detachment of the [illegible], who had [illegible] the insurgents, come upon the scene with four field pieces, and are welcomed with yells of rage. Delonnay, who had been [illegible] from blowing up the fortress, [illegible] drawn sabre, and the people, [illegible] for slaughter, dash upon it and kill him and several of his [illegible]. Six of the invalids are hanged to [illegible] are stuck off and [illegible] ghastly [illegible] and [illegible] pikes. The Reign of Terror is formally ushered on that woeful day. The [illegible] clock of the Bastile goes on marking time as if the old time had not [illegible] and the new time, the time of [illegible] and [illegible] had not [illegible] begun. The clock strikes the hours, too, with its old [illegible], but they are not the ordinary hours, they are the hours of [illegible] and of fate.

Late in the afternoon the 16th is ushered in, and all Paris is [illegible] with [illegible]. The white [illegible] cockade is at white heat with devilish glee and [illegible] [illegible]. The capital is a [illegible] of savage [illegible]. Only [illegible] are [illegible] within the heavy pile, four of them [illegible]. Of the old [illegible] one is the Count de Solage who had been shut up since his early boyhood. Another Tavernier, who had spent thirty years there, and when liberated, is both [illegible] and mentally a [illegible] wreck. The day following the demolition of the [illegible] begins [illegible] and the chanting of the Te Deum. The [illegible] of the [illegible] is at its height. The tide of destiny is [illegible] strongly in and it has never ebbed. When the [illegible] [illegible] that is a revolution. "No sire," is the reply, "it is a revolution!" And it is! It was such a revolution as history had never recorded.

TURGOT.

IN THE TOWER.

The king was [illegible] and [illegible], nothing not what to do or which way to turn. His first contemplated flight beyond the frontier had he speedily changed his mind for which he had a tragic facility. He was averse to employing the force he [illegible] and having a horror of [illegible] [illegible] methods which were fatal to this course he went to the [illegible] and there [illegible] for the first time. He [illegible] accepting the Revolution, he declared that the freedom of that [illegible] be preserved in favor of the fact that he had previously [illegible] the army to advance to Paris. Wavering was his [illegible], the source of his undoing. His words however, brought back [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] the crowd and his [illegible].

The investigation further showed that Mr Durgin has not used any money collected for these concerts for any other purpose than the one for which it was subscribed as has been erroneously stated. Furthermore, Mr Durgin has paid many of his own pocket for music for use in these concerts.
